History

Mark Garton, a Hull joiner, commenced trading in 1888 from premises in Day Street, Anlaby Road. At the turn of the century he started to conduct funerals and in 1927 carried out 20 funerals in the year.

The joinery and building side of the business grew and in order to facilitate this increase, larger workshops were found in St. Georges Road.

In 1925 a shop in Arthur Street was bought to take funeral orders and to sell flower vases for the cemetery. A chapel of rest was not included then, as it was customary for the deceased to be left at home with relatives and friends calling at the house to pay their respects. Around the same period a larger workshop was found in Haddon Street, Hawthorn Avenue and the St. Georges Road premises were sold. At this time the manufacturing joinery side of the business employed some twenty men.

In 1932, the Anlaby Road premises were purchased to include a chapel of rest, as this became an expected feature of a Funeral director's service.

Albert Garton, (Mark's son), continued to develop the business and in the 1940s his two sons, Ron and Walter, became involved in the firm. In the 50s and 60s Ron developed contracts in the trade and coffins were manufactured and supplied to other Funeral Directors throughout East Yorkshire. The cars for the funerals had to be hired from Ellyards Taxis of Hessle Road until a second-hand hearse and car were purchased. Walter left the firm in the late 1950s to pursue a career as a freelance BBC cameraman specialising in film and video production.

Malcolm, (Ron's son), joined the firm in August 1968 starting at the workshop in Haddon Street where coffins were still being hand-made. New Humber Hawk limousines were bought in 1967/68 and the cars were also available for weddings.

In 1977 a compulsory purchase order was placed on the Haddon Street workshop; resulting in the move to 819 Hessle High Road including offices, chapel of rest and garage all under one roof. At this stage the joinery side of the business finished due to a planning regulation that no machinery could be used for manufacturing at the new site. The last items made at Haddon Street were garden gates.

Prior to the move to Hessle High Road around 300 funerals per year were being carried out. After increasing business over the next decade a branch was opened at 26 Chamberlain Road.

In August 1993, Eric Walker's Funeral Service, Hedon was purchased, this branch serves clients in Hedon & Holderness.

June 2004 saw the purchase of J.B. Morton & Son of North Cave to serve the surrounding villages west of Hull.

By 2019, both Malcolm's daughter, Andrea and her husband, Garth Imison, had joined the business, continuing in the family tradition.

In 2021 Garth became Managing Director, focusing on moving the business forward and seeing our further expansion into East Yorkshire with a new branch in Brough.

When someone dies

There are a number of steps which need to be taken. We understand that this can be an emotional and difficult time; our aim is to offer as much support and advice as possible.

In hospital

When someone dies in hospital a doctor will issue the Medical Certificate Of Cause Of Death which you need to collect, along with any belongings from the bereavement office.

If the funeral is to be a cremation, please advise the hospital staff so they can make arrangements for any additional documentation that is needed.

At home or a nursing home

When someone dies at home or in a nursing home the first contact should be Gartons on 01482 354036. Then speak to the deceased's doctor who, if satisfied with the cause of death will issue the Medical Certificate of Cause of Death.

In most cases you will be asked to collect the certificate from the surgery.

Registering a death

A death must be registered in the county where it occurred within five days, although this period can be extended in exceptional circumstances or if the coroner is involved.

Who can register a death?

- A relative
- An executor
- Someone present at the death
- A manager, owner or carer from the nursing home.

Information you will need to register a death

Most importantly

- Full name of deceased
- Identification for yourself: Passport or driving licence and a Utility Bill or a Bank Statement.
- The medical certificate of death, signed by a doctor

It is helpful to the registrar if you can also provide any of the below, however they will be able to work with the above basic information if you cannot find any of this:

- Any previous names, such as maiden name
- Their last address
- Date and place of birth (Birth certificate if available)
- Date and place of death
- Last occupation
- The name, date of birth and occupation of a surviving or late spouse or civil partner
- Details of any state pension
- Marriage/civil partnership certificates
- NHS medical card or number if available.

The 'Tell Us Once' Service

The Government operates a 'Tell Us Once' service which the registrar will offer and explain to you. Essentially it allows information to be passed to the Department of Work and Pensions who will notify government and council departments on your behalf.

This service can be done by telephone or online and will require a reference number which the registrar will provide.

What documents will you receive from the registrar?

The registrar will give you:

A certificate for burial or cremation, known as 'the green form'. Please let us have this document at your earliest convenience.

The registrars charge £11.00 for a Death Certificate

We recommend that you buy a few depending on the complexity of the deceased's estate.

When someone dies unexpectedly, the Coroner is usually involved.

Usually if:

- The cause of death is unknown
- The death was violent or unnatural
- The death was sudden and unexplained
- The deceased was not visited by a medical practitioner in the 14 days leading up to their death.

Contact us as soon as possible, we can advise on the procedures involved and liaise with the Coroner's Office.

Arranging a funeral

You may be anxious, confused and perhaps some emotions you have not experienced before will make you wonder how you can arrange the funeral objectively.

Our staff understand some of what you may be going through. The closer you were to the person who died the more constructive help and emotional support you will need from us. Be assured everything will be carefully explained to you and options and alternatives pointed out.

Once the final decisions are made confirmation is given in writing including the estimated cost. If you think of something you would like after the preliminary arrangements are made simply ring us at anytime to change your mind or make a request. Nothing you can ask for will surprise our staff, even if you feel embarrassment asking for something that you feel may be regarded as unusual, do not worry it will be taken care of with dignity and respect.

Preliminary Guide

The following questions have been compiled to help you think about the kind of decisions that will need to be made when arranging a funeral.

You are under no pressure at all to decide on anything at this stage, and we will be more than happy to explain everything to you face to face when you meet your Funeral Director, all options will be explained in detail and we will make sure your wishes are correctly recorded.

- Is the funeral to be a burial or cremation?
- Where would you like the service to be held – church, cemetery, crematorium chapel or other venue?
- Do you have a preference for any particular minister or officiant to take the funeral service for you? (Religious or non-religious service?)
- Your choice of coffin?
- Would you like the deceased to be wearing their own clothing or for us to provide a gown?
- The number of limousines? (Our cars take 6 passengers)
- Will the funeral be horse drawn? (Subject to distance and availability)
- Where would you like the cortège to leave from? (Home, or our Chapel of Rest)
- Are you welcoming flowers to be sent or would you prefer donations to a charity?
- Do you have any special music that you would like to use during the service?
- Would you like us to print orders of service?
- Would you like us to place any newspaper notices for you?
- Where will you be returning after the funeral?

The Funeral

M. Garton & Son can help with any requirements you may have. We can provide as many services as you feel you need or you may disregard them, we are here to help and guide. The first choice to be made is burial or cremation? The cost of a cremation is usually less than a burial.

Direct Cremation

This is the most basic funeral, without a ceremonial service.

This excludes viewing the deceased, a service of any kind and no attendance at the crematorium.

A Simple Funeral

This would include the funeral director's services, attending to the minimum necessary arrangements, transfer from the place of death into our care, our cardboard coffin, dressing in our simple gown, a hearse and bearers to meet you, for cremation in Hull at a time convenient to us.

A Bespoke Funeral

There are many options where you can add a personal touch to elements of the service, be it small or be it flamboyant. We always endeavour to provide our clients with their wishes where possible and practical.

Burial

The cost of a burial is usually more than a cremation. The fees are a bit more variable with a burial, depending on which cemetery you use, if plots are available, length of time of purchase of the grave etc.

Other burial expenses

There are other possible expenses which may be incurred. Please see the price sheet.

Prices

Please see our price details supplied with this brochure.

Options (Coffins, Carriages, Flowers and other funeral requirements.)

Please see the accompanying 'Service Options' booklet to help you choose the appropriate way to personalise the service to your needs or wishes of your loved one.

The Steps of the Funeral care process.

You may find it helpful and reassuring to know of our procedures, when we are called upon to bring your loved one into our care, prepare them for rest and conduct a funeral.

Bringing your loved one into our care

This is done with the utmost dignity and respect.

Two of our trained and experienced staff will attend. In our fully fitted private ambulance. We use a modern lightweight removal stretcher, pillow and cover, disposable sheets and identity bracelets.

When we are called for example to a private house or nursing home, a check is made with you or staff at the nursing home for any jewellery worn and we ascertain if it should stay on, or be removed.

We have a rigorous checking system in place at all stages of our care. It starts from the very beginning, to viewing in the chapel of rest and to the closing of the coffin on the day of the funeral.

A minimum of two staff members, usually the hearse driver and funeral director witness the closing for identification and any personal effects for the last time and sign the final record.

Is embalming necessary?

It is our policy not to embalm as a matter of routine, in most instances it is not needed. We have mortuary facilities and a temperature controlled environment, so in general for the few days between death and the funeral, viewing can take place until the last day.

We will of course advise on viewing. Should it become necessary to close the coffin early we will keep you informed. We think most of our clients would prefer this non-invasive cosmetic preparation with nature being allowed to take a more natural course.

We will however, recommend embalming when the deceased needs to be kept in our care for a long period.

Visiting the Chapel of Rest

After your loved one has been taken into our care, there will be an opportunity for family and friends to pay their respects at the Chapel of Rest. Our aim in the preparation of the deceased is to make them appear as natural as possible, ideally to make them look as if they are asleep and at peace.

It helps us greatly if you can provide a photograph of the person so we can make sure their hair is in the correct style and to achieve a natural appearance, however it must be accepted that there are changes after death, but we will do our very best to ensure a comforting experience for you.

We can dress your loved one in one of our gowns, or you may prefer their own clothing to be used. You can advise us on whether any makeup should be used, perhaps providing your loved one's own makeup, so the colours are appropriate.

If you do decide to visit you will find our staff to be sympathetic and they will come into the chapel with you initially and then leave you in private for quiet contemplation.

Many people have a dilemma deciding if they should visit or not. In the main most are pleased they have, but the final decision has to be yours. Our experienced staff will help you all they can.

On the day of the Funeral

If you have not been to a funeral before, or perhaps not for a long time, you may have concerns about protocol and procedure; this is something you need not worry over. The next pages give a general outline of the proceedings. Primarily the service should be carried out to your wishes and we can change and adapt to your needs.

Funeral Procession

If the funeral is leaving from an area where the parking of our limousines at the house may cause problems, we can provide 'no waiting cones' that we will put out earlier in the day or the evening before.

The funeral director or conductor will on arrival at the house, speak to the main mourner or closest relative of the deceased; they will enquire if everyone has arrived, check if any flowers have to be placed in the hearse, or any other requests taken care of. You and your family will be escorted to the limousines or family cars.

Our own staff are dressed in charcoal grey suits with black ties and the drivers wear chauffeur's caps and our funeral directors wear either a morning coat, or frock coat with pinstriped trousers. In colder weather grey overcoats are worn.

Arriving at the Church or Crematorium

We will ensure that all guests have arrived are seated and have copies of any order of service or hymn books if required, before proceeding with the funeral. They will also ensure enough seats are saved for family members.

Your funeral director will walk the funeral cortège to the main entrance, before speaking to the minister/celebrant who will be conducting the service. When it is time they will briefly speak to you, before leading the bearers carrying the coffin into the church/crematorium. If you wish your friends and family to be pallbearers this can be arranged, which will be overseen by the funeral director to ensure that it is done safely.

At the end of the service, in the case of a cremation, the curtains are usually closed at the conclusion, but they can be left open if you prefer. The coffin remains in place until everyone has left the chapel then a short time later the cremation will take place.

Service Timings

A service usually takes about 25 minutes, depending on the content. This could be hymns, perhaps one or two; some have no singing at all, but music special to the family is played as we enter and exit. Sometimes another piece is played in the middle for a period of reflection. When the service is concluded the Funeral Director will ask you to follow out of the chapel.

Some families prefer a service that is non-religious; if this reflects what you feel would be appropriate we have officiants who will take the service at the crematorium, cemetery chapel or other private venue.

A Roman Catholic Requiem Mass can be 45 – 50 minutes in church. No funeral is or should be the same as another, it is personal to you and what you think your loved one would be satisfied with.

Our staff usually carry the coffin on their shoulders, as is our normal and traditional practice, sometimes friends and family may wish to do this. On occasions a coffin may need to be wheeled into place.

We have a selection of flags to drape on the coffin. For example If the deceased had a military background we can drape the coffin in a Union Flag, or if they were passionate about a local sports team we could use the team flag. We also have a maroon and gold braided cover if required.

In the case of a burial after the service in the church or chapel the coffin will be taken to the grave. We place the coffin in the hearse unless the grave is close by. The coffin is carried to the grave and once everyone is gathered round the coffin is lowered into the ground. The committal at the graveside is quite short, perhaps five to ten minutes, you will have time to see any flowers that may have been sent. Our staff will place them nearby and you have an opportunity to speak to anyone before we leave.

After the service we will take you back home or to a venue for refreshments.

Is there a dress code?

Traditionally black is always appropriate, a simple dress, a suit and black tie for example. You should be comfortable as befits the occasion.

There are no hard and fast rules, things are becoming more relaxed. Casual wear is worn in various forms and some feel more comfortable in dark colours and less black.

Some funeral wishes can include mourners to dress colourfully or in the colours of the person's favourite team. Requests to dress like this are usually made by the next of kin or person organising the funeral and are broadcast by the funeral director when placing notices in the local press.

Will I have time to see everyone?

Sometimes mourners attending the service go in to the chapel before the family arrives, for large funerals this is encouraged so only the close family follows the coffin. This allows the service to start on time.

There is an opportunity after the service to see those who attended, or you may be inviting everyone back to a venue for refreshments, this may be at home or at a public house or hotel. The scale of this event is entirely down to what you feel is appropriate, be it refreshments, a funeral reception or a wake. We can assist you with suggestions for local venues suitable for the type of event you wish to hold. We are ready when you wish to leave, you will not be rushed in any way, then we can take you home or to any other venue.

Cremated Remains

The cremation procedure is very strictly regulated and great care is taken.

Families can find it quite a difficult decision to decide what to do about the ashes. We will collect the ashes for you and take them back to our office for safekeeping. A few days later, we will contact you to see how you are coping and to see if you have made a decision.

If you are still undecided we will keep them with us for two months. Should you still not be ready to collect them or have some form of memorial, we can still hold them for a small monthly charge.

We offer a selection of urns, caskets and vases. The cremated remains or ashes as they are usually called, are given to us from the crematorium in the cardboard urn which is included in the cremation fees. This is adequate if you are intending to scatter the ashes somewhere. Otherwise we can transfer them to your chosen urn or casket.

Charitable donations at the funeral

Many families ask for donations to a charity in lieu of flowers, the procedure for collecting the money raised is quite straightforward.

If you are having a notice in the newspaper you can specify, "No flowers by request, but donations for may be left at the service". The online version of the newspaper can take donations directly if the nominated charity is recognised by the publisher.

We provide a locked box at the crematorium and place a small sign next to the box indicating what mourners are donating to.

After the service as people are leaving, they will have the opportunity to donate if they wish. Once everyone has filed past the box and are leaving the building, we invite one of the family, or a responsible person nominated by the family, to come back to the box and witness the money being transferred to a large envelope. We make no attempt to count the donations, which is done by the family later.

It is then sealed and given to the witness and they sign a card to say they have taken the donations. We can supply the family with the address to forward the donations to. It only takes a few minutes to complete this task and it is easy for people to donate with a minimum of fuss.

Please note we cannot take responsibility for any donations being left with us, they must always be given to the family immediately after the service.

There are many organisations grateful for donations; many families choose one that was important to the deceased.

We are members of the National Association of Funeral Directors.

COVID-19

COVID-19 has affected many aspects of the funeral process, from making an arrangement, paperwork, viewing, numbers allowed in a venue to even if singing is allowed. The rules are constantly changing, be it by the government or the venue management.

Our role is to assist in your welfare, whilst complying with the demands from officials. Our staff are kept up to date and are equipped to encourage best practise to the satisfaction of all parties. If you have any concerns or special requirements we will assist you however we can.

“Do the thinking now, so they don't have to.”
